In Flight, Inc. Blog Adds 3 New Contributors

In late 2020, In Flight, Inc. launched our blog in order to share news and ideas with the community. Since the development of the blog, In Flight has been looking for contributors to share ideas starting with our Development department and expanding with Clinical Corner. Since then, we have had our first guest contributor who shared information about music therapy.

We wanted the blog to be something more. That is when it hit us. We support a great bunch of individuals who have a perspective that the world should see. We reached out through our programs to see if anyone would be interested in volunteering as a contributor to share their thoughts.

As of January 2021, we are proud to introduce our three new contributors Dustin P., Jamell H., and Ibn D. The three of them kicked off their blog series discussing their New Year's goals and what they would like to achieve. They discussed everything from health to relationships.

You can check out their first and future blogs at www.inflightinc.org/blog.

Bequests: Leaving A Legacy That Will Last For Generations.

Love is not patronizing and charity isn't about pity, it is about love. Charity and love are the same - with charity you give love, so don't just give money but reach out your hand instead.

Melinda Gates once said "Philanthropy isn't about money, it's about using whatever resources you have at your fingertips and using them to change the world."

We spend an entire lifetime trying to figure out our purpose in this world, and wonder what our legacy will be when we are gone. Bequest gifts are a way to leave a legacy that will last for generations to improve the world for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Bequests can be left in the form of financial, property, stocks, and more. Setting up a bequest for In Flight, Inc. is as simple as a discussion with your attorney.

Leaving a bequest will help provide life skill training, job training, and independent living skills as well as providing In Flight with sustainability in your legacy.

Welcome To In Flight!

He has enjoyed doing spin art. We are excited to have him as a part of the In Flight family and look forward to helping him achieve his goals.

Maria Aylward, RN, ANP-BC
